Driving Good Resource Management

In other words, is it:

GOOD resource management

Good RESOURCE management

Or

good resource MANGEMENT

AI Defined Resource Management as:

Resource management best practices include strategic planning, understanding your resource capacity and demand, allocating resources based on skills and priorities, fostering open communication and collaboration, and using data-driven insights to continuously monitor, adjust, and optimize resource use.

Question:

How is your organization doing with Resource Management?

- 1 hand up if going ok
- 2 hands up if going really well
- Clap if RM is excellent in your org

Question:

? Who can (or will) share their WORST experiences staffing or managing resources?

(Not with Clarity, of course!)

Question:

? Are staffing decisions centralized through an RMO or delegated across teams??

Question:

? How accurate is your current capacity forecasting for upcoming multi-project demands?

Question:

? How do you handle teams?

Question:

? If someone were to start with Clarity, today, with resource management...

What advice would you have?
